Stephen Leacock Named Hall Of Fame Candidate

STEPHEN BUTLER LEACOCK, Head of the McGill Department of Political Economy, has been presented as a candidate for the Canadian Hall of Fame by Liberty magazine. He is not presented as an economist, however, but as Canada's foremost humorist.

According to his sponsors, he has a remarkable memory, especially for people who owe him money; for every dollar he has made as an economist, he has made four as a humorist, yet when he offered to write articles against prohibition for a newspaper without charge they refused, considering him a funny man, not a crusader.

Because of his low respect for politics and high respect for women, he believes that they should not have votes. Liberty states that "He owns and wears what is probably the most and future."

Economists Meet To Discuss Aid For Unemployed

Levites and Pollack Will Address Political Economy Club

THE theory of unemployment relief, and its application to Canada, will be discussed tomorrow evening at the third regular meeting of the Political Economy Club, when Isadore Pollack, Arts '35, and Sol Levites, Arts '36, will present papers on "Unemployment Relief and its Application in Canada."

Levites, the first speaker, will deal with the philosophy underlying unemployment relief. He will endeavour to appraise the merits and demerits of existing unemployment relief theories, and which are applicable to Canada.

Pollack, the second speaker, will discuss the application of unemployment relief in Canada. Taking the policy which the Federal Government has proposed since 1897, he will show how indirect has changed to direct relief, and that neither form of relief is worthy of the conditions it has to meet. He will propose a relief plan based on employer's liability which would force employers to regularize their working forces, and not to increase their production.

Debaters Will Hold Mock Trial Friday

Accusation Will Concern Some Phase of College Life

A mock trial under the auspices of the Junior Debating League will be held in the Music Room of the Union on Friday, December 7th, at four o'clock. The affair will take on the semblance of a king's courtroom with a gowned and bewigged judge, clerk, witnesses, and court officers.

Freshmen and sophomores in Arts will be the participants, and the entire trial will revolve about an accusation on the part of the plaintiff concerning a ponderous aspect of college life.

Allan Anderson and Sidney Friedman of Arts '37 will officiate at this annual assemblage of aspiring advocates, which is being held in place of the regular meeting of the League. A record attendance is expected and visitors are welcomed.

Postponement for about two weeks of the scheduled debate between the Spoke Club, Beatty Trophy holders of a year ago, and the Junior Debating League was announced late last night. Due to a misunderstanding, the originally intended subject has been cancelled and new topics for argumentation are being considered. Further notice concerning details and exact dates will appear in a later issue of the Daily.

Plans Made For Prom Broadcast On Friday Night

A HALF hour broadcast of dance music from the Junior Prom, to be held at the Windsor Hotel Friday night, has been arranged by the executive, according to an announcement made last night. This will be the first time in the history of the Prom that this has been done.

The Red and White Revue is cooperating with the committee in the presentation of several skits, and other features are planned. The Ballroom will be decorated with red and white streamers, while the crests of the different faculties will be flashed upon the ceiling.

Tickets for the dance are now on sale in the various campus buildings, and may also be had from the members of the executive. The price is five dollars per couple. Table reservations are to be made at the hotel.

The patrons of this year's Prom are as follows:

Deans A. F. Martin, A. S. Eve, W. D. Woodhead, P. E. Corbett, F. M. G. Johnson, A. L. Walsh; Professors E. Brown, R. Tracquare, R. M. Sugars; Mrs. Vaughan; Mr. Brittain.

Dental Society Plans To Publish Review

Prominent Men in Profession Contribute Articles

HAS WIDE APPEAL

Dental Students to Receive Magazine Without Charge

The first issue of the McGill Dental Review, new organ of the Dental Undergraduate Society, will be ready for distribution before Christmas. It was decided at a meeting of the magazine board. The new publication will be of wide appeal, the contents being of a nature to appeal to both graduate dentists and undergraduates of the faculty.

To date, articles by prominent men in the profession have been received, among them being an interesting article on Cleft Palate by Dr. I. K. Lowry and a short contribution on Periodontia by Dr. D. P. Mowry. A solution by Acting-Dean A. L. Walsh will feature the initial issue. Dr. F. W. Saunders has submitted an interesting contribution. Several of the undergraduates have also written articles on topics of dental interest.

Glinick Editor

The magazine is being edited by a staff of undergraduates headed by Philip J. Glinick, as Editor-in-Chief, T. Ivan Gullboard, as Managing Editor.

Historical Societies Hear University Of Montreal Principal

Dinner Meeting Addressed by M. Olivier Maurault

HELD AT QUEEN'S

Foundation of Sulpician Order In Canada Described by Speaker

"NOS MESSIEURS" or "The Sulpician Order" was the title of the address delivered last night by Monsieur Olivier Maurault, Recteur of the Université de Montréal, to the members of the McGill Historical Club, R.V.C. Historical Club and House of Commons Club, assembled for their annual dinner meeting in the Queen's Hotel.

Professor E. R. Adair, Associate Professor in the History Department and Honorary President of the McGill Historical Club, was in the chair during the dinner and introduced M. Maurault to the audience.

The formation of the Sulpician order was the first topic with which the speaker dealt and the source of its name, receiving its title from the name of St. Sulpice, Paris over which one of the leading members of the order presided at the time of its inception.

Deal With Canada

M. Maurault then turned to Canada and dealt with the founding of the order of Montreal and the building of

Engineers Banquet Plans Materializing

Speaker Not Yet Announced — Tickets Now Selling For $1.00

Plans for the annual Engineering Undergraduate Society banquet are rapidly rounding into shape according to members of the executive. The name of the principal speaker has not as yet been announced but it is understood that he is a prominent member of the university staff. An announcement in this regard will be made tomorrow or next day.

Tickets for the dinner are selling at $1.00, an unusually low price for this function only made possible by the expectation of a large gathering. In past years the price has been considerably higher than this, but those in charge have issued assurances that the quality will be the same as ever. The banquet will take place in the Queen's Hotel on December 15th.

As in past years, there will be a lighter side to the entertainment and while no details have as yet been announced it is understood that these will be of a high order. Prominent local entertainers have been engaged for the occasion apart from which it is possible that local talent will also be called upon.

Tickets may be obtained from Harry Grimdale or from any member of the class executive.

Society Presents Beethoven Works

By F. N. G.

TWO rarely heard works and one old favourite comprised Monday's programme of the Friends of Chamber Music Society. A large audience filled the spacious room at 1177 Mountain Street, and evinced a keen appreciation of the work of the various artists. The concert took the form of a Beethoven evening, three works being played.

The first was a Trio, Opus 70, No. 1. The work dates from 1809, one of Beethoven's most productive years. But it is difficult to recognize in this comparatively bland Trio a contemporary of the "Emperor" concerto. The music seems fairly difficult, and its occasional outbursts were hedged at a little timidly by the players.

A better performance was the Piano Quartet in E-flat which followed. Here the players dug in with zest and confidence, and a delightful performance resulted. The Quartet is an arrangement of an early Quintet, Opus 16. It is light and gay. The delicate slow movement was ably reproduced. Mr. Vito Harrisay and Mme. Blanche Kotik completed the programme with a neat performance of the graceful Kreutzer Sonata, Opus 37. The other players of the evening were Victor Schenker, cello; Jean Robert, viola; Miss Margareta Boehmer, pianist for the Trio.

The Society, in playing these little-known works as well as the more popular classics, is filling a very real need in Montreal.

R. V. C. Debaters Meet Queen's In Contest Tomorrow

TOMORROW afternoon in the Common Room of the Royal Victoria College a women's inter-collegiate debate will take place between McGill and Queen's University. This debate will be one of eight taking place on the same day between Varsity, MacMaster, Queen's and McGill, each university being represented by two teams. All the debates will on the same resolution, namely, "Resolved that the women of Canada have assumed the responsibility of their enfranchisement."

Tomorrow afternoon McGill will be represented here by Eileen Crutchlow and Juanita deShield. Queen's University will be represented by Aileen Mason and Mary Stewart. The McGill team will uphold the affirmative side of the debate. The judges, it was announced last night, will be, Miss Ellen K. Byran of the Trafalgar School for Girls, Canon Shaford and Mr. C. H. Richardson.

The eight debates will be judged on the basis of points. The University achieving the most points will be awarded a trophy symbolic of the championship of the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union.

All students are invited to attend this debate.

Sexual Development In Fungi Discussed

R. H. W. Stevens Speaks at Meeting of Biological Society

MENTIONS WHEAT RUST Fungi More Numerous Than Any Other Forms of Green Plants

The development of sex in the fungi from the most primitive to the most highly developed species was the subject of a talk given before the meeting of the Biological Society by R. H. W. Stevens yesterday afternoon.

During the course of this talk, the speaker pointed out that the fungus kingdom is made up of an enormous number of species—more, in fact, than are found among the other green plants—and that they can be traced back to the earliest stages of life, as shown in the myxomycetes group. In this group are also found the earliest characteristics of sexuality.

Other groups described by the speaker then went on to describe the other main groups, showing several examples of the phycocetes and ascomycetes, and outlining the gradual growth of a differentiation between the male and female cells. In this relation, he particularly emphasized those examples of ascomycetes which bear characteristic fruiting bodies.

Students Addressed On Greek Medicine

Osler Society Also Heard Speech on "Metchnikoff"

Two papers were delivered at the regular monthly meeting of the Osler Society last night in the Osler Library by C. L. Yule and A. W. Lapin, who presented papers respectively on "Greek Medicine" and "Metchnikoff."

The first paper on "Ancient Greek Medicine" gave an account of medicine in the early classical days. At that time the mystic priest and doctor were one person. Homer's works contain many references to medicine and surgery on a more scientific basis. In later centuries medicine was placed back under the patronage of Apollo, and of his mystical son Asclepius. The cult of Asclepiads was developed and included many temples at which the priests effected cures.

Hippocrates Father of Medicine

Hippocrates lived during the fifth century B.C. and has been called the Father of Medicine. Under his name are collected a heterogeneous group of fundamental works based on experience and in which the diagnosis of certain diseases can clearly be made by the modern reader. In the third century B.C. Alexandria became the centre of medical influence. Great advances were recorded in anatomy. The old theories were based on the four humours—earth, air, fire and water, their disproportion resulting in disease. Herophilus and Erasistratus continued these investigations, and each added his own philosophical theories.

Greek medicine reached Rome in the 1st century B.C. Early leaders were Asclepiades whose remedy was

Local Graduate's Society Calls Meeting In Union Thursday, December 13th.

Executive Decides to Take Aggressive Step Towards Society's Object of Advancing Interests and Promoting Welfare of the University and Its Graduates — Discussion and Criticism Wanted at Open Meeting Being Called Next Week

THE Graduates are going to have a busy and interesting time this season if present plans of the Executive of the Society's Montreal Branch are carried out. Already a full and diversified programme of activities has been drawn up.

Now is the time, the Executive have decided, to take an aggressive and definite step forward towards the achievement of the Society's prime object: "to advance the interests and promote the welfare of the University and its graduates."

The personnel of this Executive is present is:

President—Dr. Slater Lewis.

Vice-president—Professor McBride.

Honorary Secretary—Professor O. N. Brown.

Honorary Treasurer—H. E. Herschorn.

Members of Council—Dr. G. W. Halpenny, Carvel Hammond, H. R. Mulvena, L. H. Ballantyne, Drummond Ross, Brooke Claxton, Dr. J. C. Flanagan, E. A. Cushing, Mrs. Sproule, Miss Mabel King.

Since their first meeting October 24th they have been hard at work; they have given much time and thought to the problems of the Branch, and now present for the approval of McGill graduates and past students in Montreal, a lengthy schedule of proposed events and activities.

That a definite expression of opinion on these proposals may be obtained from the great body of McGill men in Montreal, a free open meeting is called for Thursday, December 13 in the Union. At this meeting the Executive will ask for a discussion and criticism of the activities proposed. Arrangements have been made to supply without charge, liquid nourishment and refreshment to all present.

New activities proposed include:

The mailing of the Daily at the Branch's expense, once a week until it ceases publication in the latter part of March, to all members of the Branch and Alumnae Society. This Daily will contain a special section devoted to news and subjects of interest to graduates and past students. The first issue is being sent all McGill men in Montreal, whether they be members of the Society or not.

It is intended to hold an Annual Dinner some time in the spring, probably during May.

A further suggestion is that definite arrangements be made, either by the Montreal Branch or the Parent Society, to have the graduating class of each faculty addressed by a prominent graduate of that faculty on the subject of the Graduates' Society. A special smoker in the spring will be held by the Society for the graduating classes.

The Executive intend to make the Annual Meetings of the Branch, which hitherto have been inclined to be rather dull, much livelier and more interesting, and to follow them by a Social at the Branch's expense.

In order that the Montreal Branch may keep in touch with athletic matters at the University, it was decided to request the executive of the Parent Society to designate one member of the present Athletic Board as the official representative of the Montreal Branch, and also to amend the by-laws of the Society to permit hereafter the appointment of one graduate member of the Athletic Board—by the Montreal Branch Society.

Players' Club Production Stars New Kissing Style

BARELY a week away, the first major production of the Players' Club looms large on the university horizon. "The Devil's Disciple" by George Bernard Shaw is, by all accounts a worthy successor to the Club's long list of past successes. In an interview with the president last night it transpired that never in the history of the Club had such careful attention been paid to the details of production. It appears that special research has been made in the costume field where many interesting and little known facts have been brought to light. Among these have been unearthed the fact that General Burgoyne had a specially tailored uniform with short coat tails, because he was too stout a man to sit on those of the conventional length with comfort. Also a new style of kissing had to be evolved to enable the hero to circumvent the unusually wide brim of the heroine's mob cap.

High hopes are still held by the executive regarding a novel device to be used in connection with the scenery. It is hoped to be able to project a whole scene on to the back-drop. In this way an unusually realistic effect might be obtained. When spoken of last night, however, the Designer, Max Roth stated that no projecting lantern of sufficient prismatic power had as yet been found to make the scheme feasible in Moyse Hall but that he still had hopes. This show is being produced next week in Moyse Hall. Tickets will be available from Monday at the Union Box Office at fifty-five cents each.

To Promote The Welfare Of The University

HOW can we, graduates and past students of McGill, best help our Alma Mater?

This question is one we all must frequently have asked ourselves.

Most of us are deeply conscious of the debt we owe McGill. It is not, of course, a debt accurately to be evaluated in terms of dollars and cents, but one practical factor can definitely be determined. It is this: we never, as students, came near paying the cost of the university education we received.

Should we not now be anxious to repay, as best we can, that debt so that our Alma Mater may continue to progress and develop in the service of Canada, and that our successors may continue to enjoy the privileges which were our in our undergraduate days?

The only medium through which the average graduate or past student has an opportunity of assisting in the upbuilding of his university is the Graduates' Society. Its first aim is "to advance the interests and promote the welfare of the University and its graduates." Subsidiary to this is the second object, "to bind both the graduates and the non-graduates more closely to their Alma Mater and to one another."

So we are confronted with a second question: How best can the Graduates' Society help McGill?

That involves a consideration of the efforts already made by the Society to achieve its prime object, and of the possibilities of enlarging and improving those efforts. It is a question in which we are all interested, and which, if any satisfactory answer is to be obtained, should be the subject of a discussion in which we all can join.

An opportunity to enter into such a discussion will be given all Graduates and past students at next week's informal meeting.

Believing that a strong Graduates' Society is essential to allow the expression of the graduates' interest in their Alma Mater, the executive have proposed a tentative schedule of activities, as presented elsewhere in this issue, with the object of putting more life into the Branch and making it eventually a greater power for the welfare of the University.

For many of us, interest in our Alma Mater has been confined to cheering a winning football or hockey team and criticizing a losing one. Perhaps we can help more than that.

An Appreciation

THE courtesy of the editorial board of the Daily in turning over their editorial column to the Montreal Branch and providing ample space for the presentation of graduate news and articles is deeply appreciated.

Their cooperation has made possible the development of this feature, and it is hoped that the result will prove of interest and value to McGill men and women throughout Montreal.

The Graduates' Section, we feel, has definite possibilities. Probably its greatest value lies in the opportunity offered McGill men of presenting their views on important questions affecting the welfare of their universities, its undergraduates and graduates. In these columns such questions can be debated freely and frankly, all "within the family," and valuable suggestions obtained.

Miles Gordon

IT is with great pleasure that we make known the appointment of Miles Gordon '27 to be the Editor of the Graduates' Section in the Daily, which will in the future appear once every week.

Miles Gordon occupied a number of positions on the Staff of the Daily when he was at college, and in 1925-26 he was the Editor-in-Chief. The position which Mr. Gordon is filling is one that requires a great deal of personal effort; efforts which he is giving without any financial consideration, and purely out of the goodness of his heart.

Graham Towers

By Stephen Leacock

THE appointment of Mr. Graham Towers to be the Governor of the Bank of Canada is one which is received with the heartiest approval and the warmest congratulations of all those who know him at McGill. As a matter of common sense, it seems reasonable to suppose that Mr. Towers' outstanding ability would have guaranteed his success no matter where he was educated. But we at McGill like to think it mainly due to his having had the good luck to enter this University in place of attending one of the minor colleges, Toronto, Queen's, etc. In any case his success at McGill was immediate and continuous. He came to us from the Montreal High and St. Andrews, entered on the honour course in economics and stood at the head of the list in the second year, winning the Alexander Mackenzie Scholarship.

This was in the flood tide of the war and Towers broke off his course to go overseas with the rank of Lieutenant. I remember feeling very much chagrined when the bursar of the college sternly and conscientiously refused to give Graham Towers his scholarship money till he should get back. But the boy fooled the bursar's hopes, returned covered with honour, got his money, took his degree with a first class and sailed out into the world.

But his interest in McGill did not end with his graduation. I remember about a year or so after General Currie came to us as principal, I went to his office and said: "Graham Towers of the Royal Bank has a big scheme for a huge class of bank clerks and young financial men to take economics."

"Can he do it?" the general asked.

I answered, "He says he can."

"Then let him," said the principal, dipped his pen in the ink and went on writing.

The class was a huge success. Towers got together 600 men at $5.00 each; we paid the lecturers (drawn from Ottawa and Toronto as well as Montreal) $50 a lecture for ten lectures; light, heat and power nothing, we used the R.V.C.; overhead, none but the sky. Chain stores weren't in it for profit. I was so fascinated with the success of the thing that I forgot to ask General Currie and Graham Towers what they did with the money.

After that Towers' career has been a continued and well-merited success. Very early in his bank days he published a monograph, Financing Foreign Trade, which took its place at once in the literature of Canadian banking. Throughout his rise in the bank to the position of assistant general manager Graham Towers has constantly distinguished himself as that happy combination of a practical banker and a theoretical economist for which the world usually looks in vain.

So, if he is now to be Governor of the Bank of Canada, I say with General Currie, "Let him!"

STEPHEN LEACOCK.

Past And Present

IT took 33 years to do it, but Morrow's record has gone at last. On a cold fall afternoon of 1901 at the M.A.A.A. grounds, "Our John" did the quarter in 50 2-5, with Percy Molson (winner that day of the 100 and the half) second, and Peterson of Toronto third. This fall, at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium, the flying feet of Queen's great Bill Fritz swept that old intercollegiate record off the books.

AND speaking of the quarter-mile—when Bill Amaron won the Interfaculty 440 this fall, he celebrated the Diamond Jubilee of his father's victory in the same event in the University Track Meet of 1874!

McGILL was not unrepresented in the 1934 Dominion Rugby Championships. Starting at inside for the victorious Imperials was Bruce Spears, whom the Daily delighted to dub "The Tunnel Town Bruiser" when he wore the old red sweater through 1924-25. Coaching Regina's western titlists was Greg Grassick, McGill halfback of 1925. For the western championships, Grassick's men defeated the Vancouver team coached by Hammy Boucher, that magnificent secondary defence player, a team-mate in the old days of Spears and Grassick.

RATHER interesting to consider how Old McGill has started things. That McGill-Harvard game of 1874, for instance, was the first intercollegiate rugby football contest on the continent; the martlet's claim has seriously to be considered in that never-ending argument as to the origin of hockey; a McGill man invented basketball, and skiing was introduced to Canada by a group of McGill professors!

Sports Survey

By Bill Sellar

SOMEWHAT punchdrunk after a rather disappointing football season, McGill graduates have turned their attention to hockey in the hope that Dr. R. B. Bell's reconstructed squad will retrieve a measure of what the footballers lost on the college gridirons of Eastern Canada this fall. Despite the heavy inroads of graduation and the like, the McGill team has shown to distinct advantage in its Senior Group schedule, having won two of its four games to date. The experienced play of men like Nels Crutchfield, Jack McGill, Hughie Farquharson, Kenny Farmer and others being lost to the team, Dr. Bell has been forced to rely on the enthusiasm and spirit of an almost entirely new forward line division. The Redmen have been throwing speed at them, have served notice that they will be a factor with which to reckon when the senior provincial playoffs come up for consideration in a few months' time.

MORE immediate prospects face them in regard to the annual international intercollegiate series, however. Yale plays here on December 14th, followed by Harvard one week later, on December 21st. Since McGill administered crushing defeats to Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and Toronto last winter, something more than just a couple of hockey games will be at stake when the teams tangle up in Montreal as indicated. McGill has earned rating as the premier college hockey team of North America these last two years, as you will remember. Although fortified with several of the leading players in Canadian amateur hockey when these achievements were rung up, the Redmen are planning on carrying right along in similar fashion this year.

There seems every reason for believing that McGill will retain its place at the top of the heap again this year, but most of us can see competition of keener nature in store for Dr. Bell's team than has been customary these last two seasons. In other words, these annual games which have been little short of massacres in the past two years should prove excellent matches, with McGill turning on its full power at all times. It will no longer be a mere question of how many goals the Redmen will score. That state of affairs last year undoubtedly detracted from the interest ordinarily held in the international games. No one could get much of a kick out of seeing eight or nine goals scored by one team and only one or two by the other, even though it was McGill which did the heavy scoring. Well, you can go this year and know that you will see two closely-contested games. It is expected that the Graduates will turn out in force, assured as they are of a particularly good show.

THE Montreal Branch of the Graduates Society has backed a number of former McGill basketball stars in their plan to form a Grade team. The cream of McGill's mighty cage squads of recent years has been lined up with Dr. George Faulkner, Dr. Mel Rice, Dr. Gerald Halpenny, Dr. Charlie Drew, Dr. Sterling MacLean giving the medical profession powerful representation. Engineering finds worthy standard bearers in Oakland Ross and Walker MacBroom. Commerce is represented by Carvel Hammond, Jack Taylor, and Laird Watt. The play of this Grade team has been very interesting to watch. Needless to say there was no need to install a new system of play, Coach F. M. Van Wagner's theories having helped every one of the players to his share of at least one of McGill's intercollegiate titles of recent years. When the Grade played this year's intercollegiate squad recently, it looked for all the world like an all-undergraduate workout, the only difference being that the Grade appeared much more familiar with the general system of play than the new McGill team. The cooperation of the Graduates Society is very commendable, the performance of the Grade themselves is expected to manifest itself in equally worthy fashion. It is doubtful if such a strong basketball team has been assembled in Eastern Canada since the halcyon days of the Winnipeg Toilers, Dominion Champions for a number of years.

THE Athletic Committee appointed by the Montreal Branch of the Graduates Society to look after the interests of this or any other athletic club the Branch may sponsor consists of: H. I. Herschorn, chairman, Dr. J. C. Flanagan, Dr. G. W. Halpenny, and G. C. Hammond.

Whither Riches?

PLUTOCRACY is doomed. It stands faced by the inevitable proletarian diet of strawberries and cream, and evidently nothing can be done about it. This sudden resurgent class-consciousness may startle the uninitiated into a Spenglerian state of heroic despondency, but frankly we see no way out of it. No doubt our voracious readers are rather curious when they read the above, and ask themselves what it's all about. Simply this—

Sherbrooke Street affords any casual observer many an interesting and significant experience. To wit: Parked right near the Roddick Gates we came across a 32-cylinder Packard, brightly polished and perfectly resplendent in the reflection of a six-figure bank account. At the wheel sat the chauffeur, dressed as only few of us humble mortals can hope to see ourselves garbed. He looked like one of the unwashed masses that had succumbed to the curse of seven showers a week. And he was complacently reading the Gazette—unheard-of extravagance!

In the back right-hand corner of this hearse-like vehicle of affluent propulsion sat a dignified lady, clad in costly furs, sparkling with expensive jewels, and aromatically reminiscent of les nuits de Paris—the picture of wealth and the kind of influence that comes from the possession of a sufficiency of green-colored oblong pieces of paper. She too was reading. Our curiosity was piqued. We looked for the cause of her sudden literacy.

It was the Daily Mirror!

The Elect

TODAY, as we go to the polls for the Council and Key elections, making a proper choice will not loom as ominously as in the past. Our task has been lightened, thanks to the Daily. The presentation of candidatorial platforms has helped considerably. The results of such quizzes are epic.

We know, for instance, that "every one of the candidates knows what the duties and qualifications of a Students' Council member are." We know now that they all think that the Athletic Board is swell, and that fraternities are O. K. They scarcely seem to fear the Greeks bearing gifts. And why should they? Or we? Council meetings should be open affairs, say some. Keep 'em closed, say others.

Which leaves us where we started. None of the major issues on which students may differ have

Third Place At Stake In Reds' First Home Game

Ottawa vs. Vics in Group Opener at Forum Tonight

Coupon No. 14 Will Admit Students to Double-header

WHEN Bobbie Bell's Redmen swing into action against Royals in the nightcap of this evening's Senior Group doubleheader, they will find their old rivals bolstered with the addition of Hack Simpson to the defence. A win for McGill in this contest, which is their first home game of the season, is essential, for the four points at stake will help keep the squad up with the leaders.

Fred Wigle, Red defenceman, will probably be out of action tonight, on account of his injured hand, while Bob McEwen will be used only sparingly. He too is on the injured list. The rest of the squad is in first class shape, and Coach Bell will send the boys out after plenty of goals. They'll be needed to beat Royals.

Ottawa vs. Vics

The opener will feature the formidable Ottawa Senators, who are out to show that their defeat at the hands of Verdun last Sunday was only a temporary affair. They tangle with the hapless Vics, who have been unable to connect with a victory so far. Four points are at stake in this contest as well, and the race will be considerably tangled if the Vics do the apparently impossible, and upset the mighty Senators.

In today's workouts the forward lines of Lamb, Duff, Crutchfield, and Elie, Morse and Dickinson clicked nicely. Tommy Morse showed his old-time zip, and should make his presence felt plenty tonight.

The Senior Group this season has proven itself even a more popular drawing card than last year. With the addition of the powerful Senators, the new strength that Cecil Hart's Verdun boys have shown, with Royals, McGill and Canadiens right up with the top notchers, every double bill is replete with first rate hockey, and the turnstiles have been ticking accordingly. Tonight's bill should prove especially attractive, and a large contingent of McGill supporters will be on hand, since student coupons will be accepted tonight. Coupon number fourteen is the open sesame tonight.

Yale comes up to Montreal a week from Friday, to offer the Redmen their first international competition of the season.

Sports Correspondence

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

I notice in today's "Slants On Sports" by AG that one of the sub-heads reads "Timeo Hueyem Dona Ferentum." Now I don't know whether A. G. (whoever that may be) has ever studied any Latin. Presumably he has since he takes a quotation from Virgil. In any case, whether he has or he hasn't, the sub-head in question reveals great ignorance of the Latin tongue, and should never have appeared in a university publication. Any high school Latin student will tell you that the word should have been "ferentem," not "ferentum" as A. G. would have us believe. Ferentem, in this case, is a participial adjective, derived from the verb Fero—ferre, meaning to bear or carry; the accusative, singular, masculine of its present participle ends in EM, like most third declension adjectives. A mistake like this in a college journal is unpardonable. I wonder what Dean

Mace Gives Stellar Scoring Display As Eng. IV Wins 29-14

Tallies 15 Points as Plumbers Down Dentistry Freshmen

CLASS BASKETBALL

OUTSTANDING in yesterday's class basketball tilt was the stellar performance of Mace, of Eng. IV, who tallied no less than fifteen points to lead the Plumbers in their 29-14 victory of the Dentistry freshmen. The winners only produced four men for the game, and so the Dentists played one man short to even things up. McLeod and Morris tallied 7 and 6 respectively for the winners, while Wilkins headed the Dental point-getters with 8 notches.

Commerce II just managed to shade Dentistry II by an 11-10 count, making the day a complete flop for all those pulling for the Tooth-pullers. Thompson headed the Commercial point-getters gaining 6 counters, while Herring sank two baskets. For Dentistry, Lang and Griffiths each scored 4, and Rubin garnered 2.

Comm. Arts Drew

Evidently Commerce I and Arts I could come to no decision after a hard afternoon's play. The final score was 22-22. The high marksmen for Commerce were Conway, who scored 8 points, and McEwen and Novinger with half-a-dozen apiece. For the Classical neophytes, Woo, with 6 points was the top sniper, while Kalfas, Darby and Metrakos each accounted for four.

The line-ups are as follows:

No Snow Means Little To Skiers In Mountain Drill

Meeting of Team in Union On Friday

DESPITE the lack of snow, the McGill skiers still maintain workouts on the mountain every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 5 p.m. Many new faces have made their appearance amidst the old familiars, such as the two Houghton brothers, Ronnie Denton, John Felner, etc.

Of the newcomers, the Townsend boys, Tom and Bob, seem to be pretty good in practice runs. . . If their running around the mountain in the dark is any indication of their skiing ability they should be all right this winter. Roland Skinner has also been turning out regularly. It is from these men who turn out regularly at practices and work hard, that a ski-team develops. It is hoped that all those who have been turning out so far, will continue to do so, and as for those who have not started as yet—it is never too late to start.

Jack and Jim Houghton, two old stand-bys, should go well this year. Jack has already distinguished himself many times in inter-collegiate meets and this year should be no exception. Jimmy is just as good as his big brother, and in his own opinion, better. He should develop into the best skier McGill has ever had, if he keeps going the way he has for the last few years. For further information those interested are asked to get in touch with Bill Tait, Captain. A meeting of the club will be held this coming Friday, Dec. 7, at the McGill Union.

MANAGERIAL CLASS BEGINS TODAY IN UNION GRILL ROOM

Today the new Managerial System of the Athletic Board gets into full stride as the candidates for Managerial Posts write their preliminary exams. The School will meet at five o'clock in the Union Grill Room.

The new system of Managers as inaugurated a few weeks ago at the University consists of three grades. Promotion from one grade to the next is considered on the basis of merit as shown through the candidates' work and the results of little tests given from time to time.

The grades in the new system are 'Competitor,' Assistant Manager and Manager. The whole system is controlled by the Managerial Board, a board of three men, this year consisting of Lorne Gales, William Sprenger, and John H. McConald. The Competitors entering the system today will, if they prove satisfactory, be Assistant Managers next year and Managers the following year. The most efficient of the managers will eventually become members of the Managerial Board.

This Managerial Board will control the management of all Athletics at McGill, whether intra mural or inter-collegiate. The Board is working under and in cooperation with the Athletic Board of McGill.

The new system is not peculiar to McGill, certain fundamental ideas have been taken from the systems now in operation at Yale, Harvard and

Humour On Stage Topic Of Address

Mr. May Addresses St. James
Literary Society

Remarking that it was a sorry comment upon the Montreal theatre that an audience should have to listen to a lecture upon the theatre rather than attend actual performances, Mr. P. M. May spoke last night before the St. James Literary Society on "Humour on the Stage." The speaker also expressed the wish that Montreal would shortly see the establishment of a Little Theatre movement by public interested people, who could subsidize such a project.

The speaker expressed the views that humour on the stage is far more effective than that presented by authors or lecturers, for upon the stage the writer has the advantage of giving certain visual impressions to his audience, and thus rendering with doubly acute the stage, as a medium for humorous situations, rarely, if ever, leaves a situation hanging in the air, and is therefore very potent. Illustrating this point, May stated that the ludicrous scenes from Shakespeare's Midsummer-night's Dream do not move one to the tearful laughter that the stage production does.

Dealing with the American theatre and the types of humour presented therein, the speaker condoned some of the obvious and vulgar types in vogue, but demonstrated that a recent Pulitzer Prize was awarded to the entertaining opus of Kaufman and Ryckin, Of Thee I Sing, a political satire of the highest order. In May's opinion, Philip Barry, Rachel Crothers and Edna Ferber also have done much to elevate the style of American wit from the bog into which it seemed to have sunk for a time.

No comment upon humour of the modern plays would be complete without some recognition of the great work done by Noel Coward, celebrated playwright and composer. The lecturer quoted copiously from Hay Fever, which was presented last year by the Players' Club, and from Private Lives. In speaking about English types, the speaker expressed the delight which he personally had been accorded by W. S. Gilbert's whimsical dialogue.

Laughter, according to Mr. May, is predominantly a social grace, and therefore jest can only be appreciated to its full when savoured with others.

ies, and which are recognizable by their regular eight-spore structure.

From here he proceeded to a discussion of the fourth group, the basidiomycetes, which include such common forms as the mushroom and toadstool. The more important members of this group, however, are the rusts which have a practical as well as biological importance, in that they are responsible for a serious disease which attacks wheat. This question the speaker reviewed briefly, mentioning the basidium, and the work being done to overcome the damage being caused by it.

Lecture Illustrated

Mr. Stevens expressed a regret that lack of time prevented him from doing more than merely touching upon the more important parts of his subject. The lecture was illustrated with lantern slides.

Theatre Review

Cinema de Paris

"Ces Messieurs de la Sante" at the Cinema de Paris is truly a one-man picture, and that man is the famous Raimu, who dominates the action throughout. The picture itself belongs to the fantasy class, dealing with a gentleman who prefers prison for some reason or other, and who, when given his freedom and liberty (or taking it, would perhaps be better) can amuse himself in no better way than to build up fortunes for other people, remaining to all intents and purposes on the right side of the law, though actually on the wrong, and in the end calmly sending himself back to prison.

In spite of the inanity of the role, Raimu gives a splendid performance in which gesture and grimace are magnificent, and every little facial expression a splendid emotional contortion. It is surprising with what agility he can change his character merely through the use of his hands and face. He has a droll manner not unlike Wallace Beery, but is a much better actor.

The supporting cast is a little weak, the female roles being hardly more than coquettish masquerades, but on the whole perhaps it is only because Raimu out-stars them. Lucien Baroux and Edwige Feuillere support Raimu capably.

The program is rounded-out with a good news-reel and two weak English shorts. France-Film produced "Ces Messieurs de la Sante": the only apparent difference between a purely French production and the French Paramount would be, it seems, that the former has not yet mastered the art of photography proper—they have the material, and plenty to spare in the person of Raimu.

Attention R.V.C. '37

The Class Picture will be taken on the steps of R.V.C. Thursday at one o'clock. Every member of the class is requested to be present.

wine, and the "methodists" of whom one offered to teach all medicine in six months. The greatest Roman physician was Galen in the 2nd century A.D. Born in Asia Minor he spent nine years travelling to learn his profession. After reaching Rome he soon attained preeminence at court and in his work. He both contributed to, and organized all the preceding scientific knowledge, but his teaching included a large share of all the medical philosophies. He considered that he had learnt all to be known on medicine, and his ambitious boast was indeed born out by the stagnation which allowed Galen as the sole authority for the next thousand years.

A. W. Lapin very ably presented the second paper on Metchnikoff. He was born in 1845 in Russia. After two years' study at University he graduated at the age of 18. Influenced by Darwin's theory, he made a great contribution to zoology by discovering the "alternation of generations." By twenty-two he was a university professor at Odessa, and in 1871 he presented a valuable treatise on the anthropological relations between Mongolians and the early Caucasians.

Metchnikoff's first wife died early, and in 1873 he married a girl of 17, whom he said he might easily train to be his womanly ideal. She indeed proved both a great source of help and encouragement, and later gave the world his biography.

Soon after he first propounded the phagocyte theory, which explained the body's defense to bacteria as a digestion by certain cells, the phagocytes. In 1888 he commenced to work at the Pasteur Institute. He published a book on phagocytosis in 1905, and it is interesting to note that this theory and Ehrlich's chemical theory of immunity have been nearly coalesced in one modern thought.

Other interests were tuberculosis, typhoid and infantile diarrhoea. His conception of senility as due to bacterial toxins absorbed from the large gut is the foundation for the slogan "change your intestinal flora," and for the use of curdled milk. The latter indeed he inflicted on all his friends. His honours by many countries included the Nobel Prize. He died in 1916 at the ripe age of 71, unhappy that his theories had not lengthened his years for further scientific achievement.

their first seminary which soon proved too small, another building being required. He also gave the early history of the Church of Notre Dame which was completed in the late seventeenth century.

Following this the speaker next turned to the missionary efforts of the Order. He dealt with the travels of the different missionaries amongst whom were the famous Casson and Gallinier who made their memorable trip through western Canada as far as Lake Huron.

"The Nos Messieurs also dealt well with the Indians," M. Maurault stated. "They did their utmost to help them in both their corporal and spiritual welfare."

Influence Of Liquor

Because of this they kept moving them farther and farther from Montreal to escape the malignant influence of the traders, soldiers and liquor. The result was that eventually the Indian settlement was situated at Oka where it has remained ever since.

In conclusion M. Maurault dealt briefly with the Order in Canada after the Session of 1763. He stressed the loyalty of the order in 1780, 1812 and 1837, and showed how they had ever stood true to their forced allegiance. The thanks of the meeting were tendered to M. Maurault by John Hodgson, winner of the Historical Club's prize for the male student holding the highest marks in the first year and taking honours in History during his career at McGill.

come into the campaign. A sort of smug unanimity on major issues seems to prevail. And maybe this is as it should be. For as one of the candidates must have put it, "Why ask for trouble?" Why indeed? Aren't things O.K. as they are? Apparently the only thing for any right-thinking voter to do is to elect them all. They agree so prettily.

Murky Skies

THE above title may suggest poignant drama to some, but it's really nothing to get alarmed at. A Promethian spirit has crept over us, and we hereby issue a complaint to the powers that control the weather. Not that the weather is a very congenial thing to discuss. But the London genus of dripping heavens that we've been getting of late deserves a note of censure from yours truly. There is only one way out. The Daily must predict hail, rain, sleet, slush, thunder, lightning, earthquakes and tornadoes. Maybe then the sun will shine. Or what's a heaven for.

It Sims To Me

BRIDGE, as many may have noted, has begun to make definite inroads. The devotees of the squared table have congregated every fortnight or so, within the very shadows of our university gates, and the results have been pleasing enough. Let it not be said, that we deny praise, where such is due. Trumping aces, messing up finesses, talking Culbertson, Lenz, emerging with shins bruised by the Black and Blue System, or One Kick Per Honor, builds sturdy character. The sponsors of said psychopathic organization are to be congratulated on their new stimulus to intelligent conversation. The pretty picture of people around tables looking intently at their opponent's cards, and saying nothing, is ample proof that this gentle art of exchanging ideas is still alive in this materialistic age of ours.
